Lipa; Acute Pressure
On Lemberg

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Petrograd, July 17.—An official communique reports: Yesterday, the Russians captured in Volhynia 317 officers, 12,637 men and 30 guns, including 17 of heavy caliber.

The official communique issued yesterday evening reported: Southeast of Struisk, west of Lutsk, the enemy attacked in masses at many points, but were driven back.

The Russians crushed a desperate resistance on the sectors Osheff and Goubine and began to envelop the enemy, who fled, abandoning several heavy and field guns. Up to the present, 3,000 prisoners have been counted.

Amsterdam, July 17.—A German official communique makes the important admission that General von Linsingen's forces, south-west of Lutsk, have withdrawn behind the River Lipa, which is a tributary of the Pryp, north-west of Brody, on the Galician frontier. This indicates more acute Russian pressure in the direction of Lemberg.

Sun Hung-yi And Chan
Yueh-tsen Both Agree
To Accept Office

Reuter's Pacific Service to The China Press

Peking, July 18.—A telegram reached Peking, yesterday, signed by Tang Chi-yao, Tsen Chun-hsuan, Liang Chi-chiao, Liu Hsien-shih, Lu Yung-ting, Chen Ping-kun, Lu Kungwang, Tsai Ao, Li Lih-chun, Tai Kan, Li Ting-hsin, Lo Pei-chin and Liu Tsun-how, announcing the abolition of the Southern Military Council.

Sun Hung-yi and Chan Yueh-tsen have telegraphed to the Government, accepting their appointments as Minister of the Interior and Minister of Justice respectively.

It is understood that General Chow Chun has telegraphed to the Central Government, expressing his readiness to hand over office to Tsai Ao. The health of the latter, however, is reported to be very unsatisfactory and it is said that he has asked the Government to accept his resignation, recommending General Li Pei-chin as his successor. General Tsai Ao wishes to go to Japan to obtain medical advice.

Attack on Yungkuang

Hongkong, July 17.—The China Mail states that a detachment of Tsen Chunhsuan's troops embarked on the 14th, on the cruiser Popik and three other warships, for the purpose of taking Kongmoon. The warships, on the 15th began to bombard the military encampments there and at mid-day the troops embarked at the railway wharf.

Governor Lung Chi-kwang's troops, which were commanded by General Yuen Tai, fled after a short engagement and white flags were seen flying everywhere among the Kong-moon hills, indicating that the city had surrendered.

Canton Isn't Satisfied

Canton, July 18.—The appointments of Lu Yung-ting and Chu Hsing-len were formally announced yesterday. While welcoming the appointment of Lu Yung-ting, leading citizens do not see any reason for the appointment of Chu Hsinglen instead of some well-known Cantonese member of the republican party and it is believed that fighting will not cease unless the Cantonese have an official appointed who is in favor with the people of the province.

The younger generation is starting a movement to secure that the chief appointments shall be made with the consent, by election, of the people, instead of by the power of a few.

parliamentarians.

According to the Tsunhua Sinpao Tong Shao-yi, Sun Hung-yi and Fan Yuan-hen, three Ministers designate in the new Cabinet, will go up to Peking some time this week.

The China Times says that the Parliamentarians in Shanghai have wired to the Home Department of the Peking Government that the members of both Houses of Parlia-

London, July 17.—The Court of Criminal Appeal, Justice Darling presiding, began the hearing of Casement's appeal today.

Serjeant Sullivan indicated that the appeal is based on the grounds, firstly, that the charge is not an offence within the Statute cited and, secondly, the Lord Chief Justice's decision adhering to the King's enemies was inaccurate.

KILLED 3, THEN SELF ON WAY TO AMERICA

Jealousy Leads Japanese Passenger on Chicago Maru To Murder Bride

Yokohama, July 11.—A tragedy in mid-Pacific in which three persons were murdered by a fourth, who killed himself after his triple homicide, was reported Sunday by officers who arrived at Yokohama on the Chicago Maru from Tacoma.

Jealousy and fear that his bride of a few weeks was planning to leave him led Yanagi Iwatsuchi, 48, a native of Yamaguchi prefecture, to shoot his wife Taki, 23 years old, and another couple also newly married.
The shooting occurred June 14 while the Chicago Maru was on her way to Tacoma, after leaving Yokohama May 26.

Iwatsuchi, the murderer, had lived in America before. He had been visiting his old home in Japan and while here had married Taki. Kato Kanshiro, 40 years old, was also returning to America with a bride—Yutaka, only 19 years old. They were all steerage passengers.

One night just after a big entertainment had been held on the steamer for the amusement of the passengers a rapid succession of pistol shots was heard. Their difference in age had led to trouble between Iwatsuchi and his bride. He believed that the other couple had been persuaded his wife to leave him as soon as they landed in America. The killing of four persons was the result.

The four bodies were buried at sea.

U.S. CONSUL C.E. GAUSS LEAVES FOR TIENTSIN

Has Brilliant Record at Headquarters Here; Mr. G. F. Bickford Succeeds Him

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Mr. C. E. Gauss, who has for many years been American consul here, left yesterday afternoon for Tientsin.
He is to be consul there but it is not known at present whether this station is a permanent one.

In the departure of Mr. Gauss, Consul General Thomas Sammons loses one of his most valuable aides.
Mr. Gauss' special ability for the consular service has been often demonstrated, one of the latest examples being his handling of the consulate-general's affairs during the absence of Consul-General Sammons in America last year.

On his departure Mr. Gauss was presented with a handsome cane by the consular staff. He left by the 1 o'clock train yesterday afternoon for Nanking and will proceed from there to his new post.

Mr. G. F. Bickford will be advanced to fill the place left vacant.
Mr. Bickford has not been here long but from his record it is evident his new duties will be well handled.

fices by our soldiers. He urges citizens to make the greatest financial effort in history.

ART SMITH, RECOVERED, STARTS HOME JULY 20

Tokio, July 13.—Art Smith is going home. The American aviator, who has been lying injured in the Municipal Hospital at Sapporo since June 16, when he was injured making a flight on the northern island, is now able to walk with the aid of crutches, and announced yesterday he would do the rest of his recovering on United States soil.

Mr. Smith and his party will sail from Yokohama for Vancouver July 20 on the Empress of Russia. His party include Messrs. Al Menasco, William Quigley and Charlie Imatsu, all of whom accompanied the aviator when he first came to Japan.

The American flying marvel is anxious for another look at his plane.
Ever since his safe recovery was assured he has been restless with a desire to get out of the hospital and prepare as soon as possible to continue his flights. The tangle in his contracts, caused by his injury, has made him all the more eager to get back in the game. So the aviator will leave Sapporo tomorrow for Tokyo.
When he lands on the other side of the Pacific Mr. Smith will proceed immediately to San Francisco, where he will rest. At least he says he will rest, although he has announced that on the side he will direct some much needed work on his plane. He hopes to be able to resume flying in a month after his arrival in the United States.

FEARFUL LOSSES

Quote Case of Bavarian Battalion Reduced To Only 24 Men

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, July 17.—General Sir Douglas Haig reports this afternoon further important successes. We stormed and captured the German second line of defence on a front of 1,500 yards, north-west of Bazentinle-Petit and we still further widened the gap in the German second line east of Longueval, by capturing the strongly defended position of Water Farm.

There has been continuous hand-to-hand fighting on our left flank in Ovillers La Boisselle, where we captured the enemy's strongholds, together with 124 Guardsmen, who formed the remnant of the brave garrison. The whole of the village of Ovillers La Boisselle is now in our hands.

General Sir Douglas Haig quotes from captured documents, showing the very heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy. These consist of appeals for re-inforcements, mostly from company commanders and all of the Bavarian forces.

One says: "Owing to the exhaustion of my men, they cannot be counted upon in case of an attack.
The company strength is one officer and twelve men."

Another says: "The company has completely lost its fighting value, owing to very heavy and very intense artillery fire. Relief is urgently requested."

But the following is probably the most striking: It is from the 2nd Battalion to the 3rd Battalion of the 16th Bavarian Infantry and says:
"The battalion consists of 3 officers, 2 non-coms, and 19 men."

British Casualties Small

The consensus of opinion is that our casualties in the great attack were small compared to the wonderful feat performed. No units suffered losses compared to those inflicted on the Newfoundlanders on the 1st, which are the heaviest up to the present, or a battalion of the London Regiment, who are second to them, their losses also having been sustained in the fighting on the 1st.

Naturally, there were sometimes heavy losses, especially where wire had not been cut and the self-sacrificing first waves of men cleared the way for their successors.

The South Africans were in the forefront of the fray near Fourcaux, or High Wood, which, at an altitude of 500 feet, is the highest point in the neighborhood. This was where the German third line of defence was penetrated and in which a detachment remained all Saturday night covering the troops consolidating the position behind.

The country beyond the ridge commanded by Fourcaux Wood is less wooded and broken and more favorable for further operations.

The troops are greatly heartened by the piercing of the German second line of defence for the first time on the western front. They say that the evil spell has been broken with the German line.

The British left, from Hebuterne to Thiepval, was practically intact.
The troops farther south were individually aware that it was up to them to reach the second line and all worked very feverishly to be ready for the second blow, the rapidity of whose delivery testified to wonderful generalship and organization.

An All-British Line

It was a British line. Regiments of English, Scots, Irish and Welsh, assisted only by some South Africans, achieved the feat of smashing fortifications on which the Germans had spent two years of hard labor and in which they had massed men and guns for the last ten days to resist us.

An unprecedented feature of such great and fierce fighting was that there were absolutely no stragglers. Men of all classes have done the job with unflinching gallantry and determination.

The work was all the more difficult as the fighting was all up-hill, there being a gradual rise of 200 feet, with many intervening hollows. Yet the British infantry were so keen that they swept over the first trenches in a single rush, in the darkness, while in some places they were so ahead of schedule time that they had to wait impatiently till the guns lifted.

The enemy were apparently overwhelmed before they could pull themselves together, but, beyond the first lines, the woods were strongly held with maxims and rifles and our losses were more serious.

Successful Beyond Hopes

The whole operation was successful beyond all hopes, but the top ridge remains to be crowned. Then the commanding position held by the Germans will be reversed.

A message regarding the cavalry charge near Fiers states: From behind some waving corn came the crackle of firearms. A half-troop each of the Dragoon Guards and Deccan Horse were riding in advance, in extended order, the former armed with lances and the latter with sabres. They were trotting sharply when they were ordered to charge.

"It was like a dash on the polo-field," said an officer, "only the men were too grim to cheer. We stuck fifteen to twenty of the beggars, while thirty more put their hands up. It was a decent little show. Pity it wasn't bigger."

The cavalrymen were withdrawn at dusk, to help the infantry consolidate their positions.

French Capture 12,000

Paris, July 17.—The French captures at the Somme up to the 13th include 235 officers, 11,976 men, 85 guns, 89 machine-guns and 26 minen-werfer. These figures do not include material buried in wrecked trenches and guns captured and immediately turned against the enemy.

The official communique issued this afternoon reported: The night was comparatively quiet at Verdun, except for a lively fusillade at Hill 304. Detachments of our troops progressed west of Fleury and captured three machine-guns.

Two enemy attacks south-east of Nomeny, in Lorraine, were repulsed and some prisoners taken. An enemy comp-de-main against a trench on the Russian sector in the Champagne was repulsed, with loss, by a counter-attack.

while General Lung Chi-kwang, of the old monarchists, has 15,000. There is a truce existing, but it will not last long, as Li and Lung are still recruiting.

Li arrived at Kwangtung with but 5,000 Yunnanese; but when he captured Kukkiang City of Shichow and Tsingyun City, all Lung's troops surrendered, later becoming republican troops. The opposing troops are Yunnanese. Lung is a Yunnanese and has recruited all his men from his native province and appointed fellow provincials to high office.

The Republicans are planning to oust Lung from Kwangtung with the forces of Mok King-yu of Shichow, Kwangsi troops now in Samshui, under Mok Wing-sun and Li Lieh-chun, from the North River.

The Republicans are planning an aeroplane attack, and General Lung has covered the buildings of his headquarters with fish nets. An aeroplane reconnoitered the city July 12, but the authorities here claimed that it was but a big bird.

Lung is willing to leave Canton in favor of the Republicans, but his generals are controlling him, refusing to give in until another battle is fought. Lung has the advantage in numbers, while Li has the help of modern military science and well-trained troops.

Tonnage of 101,000 Was Lost Through Mines or Activities Of Submarines

Official German telegram.—Berlin, July 16.—The Admiralty reports: During the month of June, 61 enemy trading ships, with a tonnage of 101,000, were sunk by submarines of the Central Powers or by mines.

Official Austro-Hungarian telegram (delayed).—Vienna, July 12.—Italian theater.—The Admiralty reports: Three Italian destroyers, in the morning of July 11, shelled the town of Parenzo for a short while. Two private houses and the tower of the parliament building were damaged.

No other damage was done and nobody was hurt. The destroyers were hit by the defense batteries and left immediately.

In the afternoon, Austro-Hungarian naval aviators bombed Ravenna and the batteries of Corsini. They returned safely, in spite of a violent defensive fire.

Berlin, July 16.—The Deutsche Ueberseesdienst states:

According to reports from Stockholm, the Russian Minister of Finance, M. Bark, after having failed to obtain loans in England and France, opened telegraphic negotiations with United States bankers, which, however, failed too. Britain had declared that her own war costs have reached a height which makes it impossible for her to help her Allies.

The Russian paper Rjetsch, commenting upon this failure, directs the most violent insults against the United States' egotism, saying that, finally, the mask of sympathy for the Allies has been torn from its face.

The Danish Postmaster-General states that the British confiscated the whole letter mails carried by the Danish liners Frederik VIII, bound for New York and Oscar II, on the way from New York. The Norwegian Postmaster-General states that the British confiscated the mail on the liner Bergensfjord, from New York.

100,000 WOULD FIGHT WITH COL. ROOSEVELT

But War Department Has Only 16,000 Applicants For Regular Force

New York, July 16.—While the War Department has obtained only 16,000 successful candidates for its plan to raise a regular force of 20,000 soldiers in connection with the Mexican situation, Col. Theodore Roosevelt has received over 100,000 applicants for his volunteer force. This demonstration of the ex-President's popularity has taken the public by surprise.

Col. Roosevelt recently applied to the War Department for permission, in case of war between the United States and Mexico, to organize an independent force of 20,000 soldiers, and that he himself command that force with the title of Major-General.

French Professor From Western Front Tells About Joffre's Methods

FINDS NEW WAR SCHOOL

French Putting Into Practice
The Great Strategy
Of Napoleon

New York, June 18.—Bernard Pares, who writes as the "official Russian observer" for the British press, mailed the following from "somewhere in Russia" on April 9:

"I came here with our British General. On our arrival we drove to the Staff of this group of armies. We were shown into a large bare room, with hardly anything but maps and a table, and sat and talked with the Commander in Chief of this front. He is now the senior post of the three fronts. Our host was a quiet, elderly man of heavy build, who wasted no words—a man whose face suggested the habit of thought and steady purpose. After a while our General rose and presented the Grand Cross and Chain of St. Michael and St. George, with a happy recognition of the value of the work of the Russian Army for England. Our host spoke a few modest and well-weighted words in reply. Both little speeches ended with the certain conviction of coming victory, and the Russian General, in his mention of the 'strong and stubborn enemy,' added the significant expression, 'but who is already giving signs of defeat.'

"We sat down to a small luncheon party. My vis-a-vis, the Chief of the Staff, had begun the war in my favorite corps, where he had won his Cross of St. George, so we had several mutual acquaintances to discuss. He explained to the Commander in Chief that he was now in England 'Sir'; the commander said it would run quite well with his name. We had more short speeches, and the homely party broke up, the Russian officers following their guests to the porch and standing under the trees to see them off.

"I remained behind; and soon I came upon another of our English red caps in the street. A staff officer of ours was on his way back to Petrograd from the front, where he had been up in an aeroplane; on his way back he was brought along in great style with an engine and two carriages all to himself, into which he invited as many Russian officers as he could lay hands on. He had further made a point of talking to every soldier that he could; in one case this led to a momentary misapprehension and the pointing of a bayonet, as it proved that the man was standing sentry over a forbidden passage. We walked about the streets and lanes and took a few photos. In the evening, in the chief restaurant, we called for 'Sambre et Meuse' in honor of Verdun, and the orchestra obligingly followed it up with 'Tipperary.'

"There has been an interesting visitor the most irreproachable Russian, with all the French graces of diction and delivery. He was sent by his Government to tell the Russian Army something about the military life of the French at the front, which he did yesterday in a lecture to this large staff. There could not have been a better choice; the professor has for many years worked in Russia, and knew just what Russians, and in particular Russian staff officers, would wish to hear. He had served in the French Army, and had been at the front himself. He told us about the German manner of intrenchment, and showed us a diagram with sections of their different lines. He had something to say about the Russian prisoners who were sent up to work on the German western front and managed, with infinite danger, to scramble their way over into the French lines. There was a very impressive picture given with the utmost quietness and without an extra word, of the system by which the whole French people has been brought into the work of the French Army behind the lines. Shortly, and without comment, was stated the rate of increase in production of the chief supplies of war, rising in one case to an increase sixty-six fold and in another to 170 fold. There was a suppressed exclamation at these staggering figures, which were given without any change of voice.

"But the most interesting was yet to come. It was a brief précis of the French method of attack as it has come to shape itself in this war. There was nothing said which is not a common-place for any German officer on the French front, but for us it was of the greatest interests, and one could see how attentively it was followed by the Commander in Chief and by all present. The French contribution to the science of method will take its place in military history. Napoleon never formed a school in this or in any other sense—in fact, he did all he could to avoid doing so, for military genius was to remain as far as possible his own secret.

"There was no school of war on the French side in 1870—only little glimpses of a Ducrot or a Chanzy. But the picture left with us now was that of a people in arms, taught and led by a patriot soldier at its head. However, what remained with us after the lecture more than anything else was the feel of a serious effort of all forces, never unnecessary and never slackened, that spoke for itself. In the admirable concluding sentence—there was no peroration—the professor summed this up; he had wanted us to feel that 'there was and is an ally on the other side who will go on working, and is sure that together we shall win.' The lecture was immensely appreciated by every one whom I met.

"I have stayed on some days here, making many new acquaintances. We have a rather stately dinner, though of Lenten fare and, of course, without alcohol. At the start we all line up as the Commander in Chief passes along shaking hands, and then we face toward the ikon, and a pleasant, country-looking priest says the Lord's Prayer; and there is a short grace after dinner. There is something collegiate about these meetings. Two Generals whom I knew were here for a day, before making their way back into the mud. One was the scientific officer, a specialist, quiet and with a stammering speech; the other was a dashing soldier with a head of white hair, whom I last remembered plunging about with Cossacks in a thick wood on the Galician front. Another told me of an Englishman who had met his children years ago, and happened to give them ship's ribbons of the British Navy, which they were now wearing. This turned out to be myself. In the army, more than elsewhere, one feels that the world is small.

"A Zeppelin had loomed up near here and several aeroplanes have paid visits; the weather is bright and fine, and so is the mood everywhere. We expect some kind of movement soon, but first there must be a drying of the thaw of boundless snows."

TIME FOR U.S. TO ACT IN PACIFIC, SAYS PAPER

New York Times Asserts

SKETCHES JAPAN'S PLACE

Baron Kato's Speech on Disposition of Tsingtau Quoted—World Urges Inquiry

New York, July 10.—The New York Times, in an editorial, quotes a speech that Baron Kato, former Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs, made last December on the disposition of Tsingtau, tells how Japan came to occupy the islands of Yap and Jaluit in the South Seas, and referring to the new Russo-Japanese Convention says:

"Japan now occupies on the Pacific islands lying on the line of navigation between the United States and the Philippines. She now keeps in her hand the Bay of Kiaochow, whose military importance is very great. She monopolizes navigation service between America and the Far East. In addition, she has now concluded an agreement with Russia, in which the two contracting parties agree to help each other for the preservation of peace in the Far East."

"If the United States has any interests in the Pacific the present is the time for her to think about protecting these interests; nay, it is a time for the United States to go a step further and take some action. The United States' interests in the Pacific are not of any recent origin, but they have an historic base and are superior to interests of any other commercial country. Some of these interests were acknowledged even before interests of Great Britain. The Americans desire, as they have done, to maintain the position of their country as one of the world Powers. Therefore, we cannot close our eyes from even the matters in progress outside the country."

"If the prophecy of Viscount Bryce, former British Ambassador to Washington, be realized, and Germany has given up her militarism absolutely, awakened from her dream of world conquest and made up her mind to make her fate by peaceful means, we desire that the groups Marshall and Caroline be restored to Germany after the war. The present status will not be welcomed by Australia and New Zealand nor even England herself. At any rate we believe that a time will soon come when the United States must seriously consider the care of her interests in the Far East."

The New York World says that although the United States Government should make careful inquiries as to whether the new pact has any effect upon her interests in the Pacific, yet she need not feel fresh precaution that the new Convention will menace the United States. The new Russo-Japanese Convention on the whole will cause progress in Far Eastern peace, believes the World.

Other New York papers are devoting much space to comments and statements on the new pact between Japan and Russia. They give prominent display to the reported interview with M. Sazonoff, Russian Foreign Minister. Some of the newspapers reproduced editorials from the London papers.

The New York Sun (anti-Wilson) says:

"We cannot believe that the present Administration will pay any profound attention to the new pact. Were John Hay alive and the United States Government was still adhering to the principles of the open door and equal opportunities, as the guiding principles of its policy in China, the new pact would have brought a grave effect upon the United States. Also, the Americans would have waited with considerable attention for the announcement of the details of the new agreement."

John Hay Recalled

"John Hay attempted to secure for Americans the same opportunities as any other foreign manufacturer or merchant received in China, but the present Administration has never planned for such a purpose. We cannot but believe that the new pact is a utilitarian document drawn from utilitarian motives for utilitarian purposes."

The New York Evening Post says: "The war in Europe has encouraged and strengthened the tendency by which Russia and Japan find a common position in the Far East. Japan has supplied Russia with munitions and she, as a partial recompense has gained Russia's agreement to the settlement of the spheres of the two nations' influence in the Orient. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance still exists, yet the Russo-Japanese Alliance has been concluded. The renewal of the former alliance may be said to be doubtful."

AMERICA STUDIES NEW RUSSO-JAPANESE PACT

New York, July 6.—Political circles in Washington are paying the keenest attention as to the contents and scope of the new Russo-Japanese Convention or Treaty of Alliance. Especially regarding the clauses pertaining to China grave apprehension is being felt as to whether it will not conflict with the clauses of the Root-Takahira agreement based on the principle of equal opportunity in China.—Asahi.

The New York Herald says: "China finds a new danger to her sovereignty in the new pact between Russia and Japan. The report in the Japanese papers that the pact has some secret terms, which have not been published may be true. The Japan Foreign Office denies the report, but such a denial by the Japanese Government is a thing we can expect at this juncture. Such a denial, however, cannot obscure the real status of the new pact from the public. At the time when the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was concluded the Japanese Government made a similar denial."

U.S. Transport Warren Comes for China Beer

Manila, July 5.—The United States Army Transport Warren will make its initial trip as the carrier of beer from China to Manila, sailing from here tomorrow at noon. For the past three months the Warren has been at the Dewey Drydock in Olongapo, receiving repairs and being equipped with adequate refrigerating apparatus for the work.

These trips will be made monthly to bring beer from Chingwantao, in accordance with the Wm Katz army mea contract. Heretofore the meat has been secured from Australia, but due to the uncertainty of the supply, and to the fact that Katz underbid his southern competitors, the contract was awarded to him.

Dizziness?

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

Have you suspected your kidneys as the cause of your trouble?

Does the back, head or limbs ache? Is there rheumatism, weak heart or dropsy? Is there too great or too little flow of the urine, with gravel or sediment? Do you feel always tired, done up, nervous?

These symptoms, and many more, come from unfiltered blood—blood loaded with impurities that are poisoning every organ.

But it's the kidneys' fault—they should filter the blood—take out its impurities. All the blood goes through the kidneys once every three minutes, day and night, for this purpose.

If then, you would "get well," you must make the kidneys well. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are for the kidneys and bladder only. They are special kidney help (no action on the bowels). They are nature's greatest healing medicine, because they heal the kidneys, the great blood purifiers, and help them in their great work.

IMPARTIAL AND PROGRESSIVE

The Chinese Crisis

The importance of the dissolution of the Military Council at Shaoching, Kwangtung, and the growing alarm felt by the Peking Government over the renewed activities of certain Kuomintang leaders (as shown by our special cable of yesterday) are considered in the following from The Peking Gazette:

A striking contrast between real patriots and office-seekers is afforded in connexion with the Military Council at Shaoching, Kwangtung. The country has been not a little puzzled to know why the Southern leaders—the authentic leaders of the recent movement, not those armchair-victors who wisely waited for the end of the battle to enter the field—have failed to abolish the Military Council, although the Provisional Constitution has been revived and all the rest of the Southern demands conceded.

Disquieting rumors began to spread some time ago—the work probably of monarchists—that a conspiracy was afoot in order to secure the election of a Southerner like Tsen Chun-hsuan to replace President Li Yuan-hung, etc. As if to lend color to these baseless rumors, the clique known as the military Kuomintang—comprising Tsen Chun-hsuan, Li Lieh-chun, Tang Mang, Hwang Hsing—began a movement in Kwangtung and Hunan, which had for its aim the capture of these provinces as a base of political operations. In Peking circles suspicion has been aroused respecting the attitude of the true Southern leaders as a result of all this. Fortunately this suspicion is now shattered through the untiring efforts of Mr.
Liang Chi-chiao, who believes in peace rather than bloody means of reform. While the so-called leading politicians and heroes have been busily engaged in a scramble for the best portfolios in the Cabinet, Mr.
Liang Chi-chiao has been quietly telegraphing to the various Southern independent provinces, urging the abolition of the Military Council. He has elicited the true attitude of the Southern provinces; and we learn that the provinces are willing that the Military Council at Shaoching should be abolished. The following telegram has reached Peking from Mr. Liang Chi-chiao:

"To the Great President and the Kuo Wuyuan. The following telegram dated 6th inst. has been received from Tsai Tu-chun (Tsai Ao): 'Acknowledging receipt of the telegram of Hsin-hui (Liang Chichiao) of the 1st inst., I wish to state that, as the Cabinet has been organized in accordance with law, the Provisional Constitution restored and Parliament convened, the Military Council should be abolished in accordance with the provisions of Article 10 of the original regulations.
Hereafter all administrative affairs ought to be placed entirely under the control of the Central Government and Parliament. As to the draft telegram (being a declaration by the Military Council announcing the abolition of same) Tang Chi-yao will be asked to despatch the same from Yunnan with my humble name countersigned thereto. (Signed) Tsai Ao.'

"The following telegram has also been received from Tu Chun-lu (Yung Ting): 'I respectfully beg to acknowledge receipt of the telegram from Jen Kung (Liang Chi-chiao) dated the 1st inst. As the old Provisional Constitution has been restored, Parliament reconvened and the Cabinet specially re-organized, the Military Council should be at once abolished. The declaration drafted by Jen Kung is proper and Yung Ting approves the same with all his heart.
Please ask Tang Tu-chun to include my name in the said declaration and obide. (Signed) Lu Yung-ting.'

"The following telegram has been received from Tu Chun-chun (Ping Kun of Kwangsi) dated 8th inst.:

'Your telegram of 1st inst. has been respectfully received. The telegram from Tutsu Liu (of Kweichow) and Lu (of Chekiang) have been duly forwarded to Yunnan and Kweichow and Shaoching. As to your proposal to abolish the Military Council at once I wish to remark that we have not yet received the telegram from the Central Government respecting the restoration of the Provisional Constitution. (Signed) Ping Kun.'

"The reason why Ping Kun and others have not yet expressed their readiness to abolish the Military Council is because they have not received the telegram in consequence of the interruption of the Yunnan-Kweichow line. I am sure they will urge the immediate abolition of the said Council. I am sending this in the hope that you gentlemen may be relieved of your anxiety. Chi-chiao."

The arrival of this telegram is not a minute too soon. Enough time has already been given to the Kuomintang mafeuders in the South who would build a castle for themselves under the protection of the Military Council. If Tsen Chunhsuan and Li Lieh-chun wish to capture Kwangtung by force of arms, they can do so under their own flag and not that of the Military Council. When he was elected active head of the Military Council, Tsen Chun-hsuan issued a declaration in the sense that if Yuan Shih-k'ai disappeared in the morning, he (Tsen Chun-hsuan) would leave the political arena in the evening.
Many an evening has passed since Yuan's death, but Tsen Chun-hsuan is still recruiting troops and what is more serious, trying to contract a loan with the Japanese without the consent of the Central Government.

Let us see what these marauders are doing, while the true workers are doing all they can to reunite the country. Reference has already been made to their sinister scheme of securing control of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Hunan, Kiangsi and Hupei as a base of operation; and attention has also been drawn to the efforts of some of their colleagues who are now energetically trying to secure political control of the country.
They have committed many offences but the worst are those committed in the name of the Military Council. They have slaughtered hundreds of innocent people, attacked many cities, disobeyed the orders of the Central Government and are now trying to split China into conflicting parts. The Military Council was organized by seven independent provinces, every one of which now agrees that the said Council should be abolished. The party which now monopolises the Council is one that has no province—a marauding band of the military type. It calls itself the Military Council and has sent the following telegram to a Shanghai contemporary for publication:

"There have been rumors to the effect that the independent provinces shall soon cancel their independence and that the Military Council shall be abolished, etc.
There is no truth in these reports.
Although mandates have been issued restoring the old Provisional Constitution and re-assembling the old Parliament, the questions of the formation of a satisfactory Cabinet and the punishment of the monarch-ist leaders have not yet been satisfactorily settled. Furthermore the remnants of the Yuan clique are now mixed up in political circles; and there is no hope of the North and South reuniting. Until the aim of the South has been fully attained the Military Council cannot be abolished."

This is the last shot of the military adventurers at Shaoching, but it is a miss. It has probably been aimed at forestalling the news that Mr. Liang Chi-chiao has secured the approval of all the provinces concerned for the abolition of the Military Council. But it will not avail, because there can be no Military Council if there is no independent province. This is the reason why the Kuomintang adventurers are trying desperately to secure a province which they can use as a "signboard"; and this is why every endeavor must be made to prevent this from taking place.
If China is to have peace, if China is to remain united, these political wreckers must be kept out of important posts. It would be preferable to grant them annuities.
Every province gained by them will be a mine laid under the Central Government.

Looking Ahead

Mr. Robbins came home well pleased with his achievement at the employment agency.

"I engaged two cooks today," he said.

"Why two?" said his wife. "We need only one."

"I know," said Mr. Robbins, "but one comes tomorrow, the other a week from tomorrow."

Consul-Captain's
London Chat

By Consul-Captain

Special Correspondence of The China Press

London, June 18.—We hear that we are to have Lloyd George at the War Office and though there is nothing official in the rumor it is probably more than likely to come true. "The little Welsh wonder," as he is often called, is a man that probably from being the best hated man in the Cabinet in his Exchequer days has grown to be "right in the picture" when anything big is talked about, and we find one of England's strongest advocates for "being unprepared for war" taking the highest posts when war becomes a fact and being trusted, too, by men who in the pre-war days were his strongest opponents.

The talk that has been roused by the loss of Kitchener has called up many memories of the man and I am pleased to find that those who, like myself, knew him personally, have formed, as I did, a very different idea from the generally accepted one of a cold, stern man.

Speaking about him calls to my mind the first occasion I saw his brother, Walter Kitchener, who was at the time in charge of the Lahore Command.

Walter Kitchener was rather deaf, and the night he came into camp was the one chosen by the Powers to have a night alarm. Those who have been through it know the joys of trying to clap your gear on to a horse at about three o'clock in the morning in the dark. Men and animals are in the worst possible temper and when from goodness knows where a man wearing a huge military coat with the collar turned up asked a sleepy trooper: "What lot is this?" the reply was simply
"B. Troop." "What did you say?"
"B. Troop." "What?" "Oh go and wash your blanket ears out!" shouted the now thoroughly aroused cavalryman, and Walter Kitchener departed.

On Wednesday to ease the strain of war times, and incidentally to celebrate the anniversary of my first seeing this vale of tears a friend and myself dropped into Stone's for dinner. Do you know Stone's? In Panton Street, just off Leicester Square, it is one of those old world coffee houses that nothing seems to effect. The funny little passage from the smoke room to the coffee room calls up memories of old country farm houses. The whitewashed brick walls, the two steps down and two steps up, carry one from an atmosphere of war and worry to a little back eddy where the most important problem consists of which of the honest English dishes you will favor for your meal.

Our fellow diners on Wednesday were two Anzacs, two fellows from the War Office, a well known barrister, an actor who was "resting," an engineering officer from "the shop" as they always call Woolwich and some city men.

Under Charles' (who is a fixture at Stone's) administrations and the influence of the old ale we felt able to take a more cheerful view of life and wandered round to see a "show." At the Alhambra they could book us seats for the third week in July—not before!—the Bing Boys having given that house such a time as they hadn't had for years, so we dropped into the Empire to see how "Follow the Crowd" was getting on. The house was full of khaki, the few civilians being "old crows." I thought the ladies who promenaded were above the average in looks. The show was very good.
Ethel Levey, Blanche Tomlin, Robert Hale and Lupino Lane are the leading lights. Joseph Coyne was an absentee, his part being ably filled by A. J. Mafflon.

In one of the scenes they introduce a huge piano which stretches right round the stage and when the young army of Paderewskis got to work on it, well duets went to 100 to 8 no takers.

To my mind the best number was Lupino Lane's "Leading a Very Fast Life."

After the show we looked in at the Cafe de l'Europe and here for the first time you realized the difference to the old days; there were not more than half a dozen people in the room, where in other times one would hardly have got a seat.

Yesterday Lord French reviewed the National Guard, ten thousand men over military age, yet with the spirit that has, in spite of official scares, turned them into a set that any man would be proud to lead.
One of the onlookers made a remark that caused one to think fur-ciously. "There," he said, "are ten thousand men; they look a huge crowd, so what must the men the Russians are capturing look like?"

Stories of The Men Who Fight Under The Sea For EnglandSecrets of 'The Trade'—Vivid Pictures of Hazards And Achievements of Submarines

By Rudyard Kipling

(International News Service)

The Trade

They bear, in place of classic names, Letters and number on their skin;
They play their grisly blindfold games In little boxes, made of tin.
Sometimes they stalk the Zeppelin, Sometimes they learn where mines are laid,
Or where the Baltic ice is thin—
That is the custom of "The Trade."

Few prize courts sit upon their claims; They seldom tow their targets in;
They follow certain secret aims.
Down under, far from strife or din, When they are ready to begin No flag is flown, no fuss is made More than the sheering of a pin—
That is the custom of "The Trade."

The scout's quadruple funnel flames A mark from Sweden to the Swin;
The cruiser's thunderous scream proclaims Her comings out and goings in.
But only whiffs of paraffin Or creamy rings, that fizz and fade Show where the one-eyed death has been—
That is the custom of "The Trade."

Their feats, their fortunes and their fames Are hidden from their nearest kin No eager public backs or blames No journal prints the yarns they spin (The censor would not let it in)
When they return from run or raid, Unheard they work; unseen they win—
That is the custom of "The Trade."

London, June 20.—No-one knows how the title, "The Trade," came to be applied to the submarine service.
Some say the cruisers invented it because they pretend the submarine officers look like unwashed chauffeurs.
Others think that it sprang forth by itself, which means that it was coined on the lower deck where they always have proper names for things.

Whatever the truth, the submarine service is now "the trade" and, if you ask them why, they will answer:
"What else could you call it?"

Close Corporation

"The trade's" the trade, of course.
It is a close corporation, yet it recruits its men and officers from every class that uses the sea and engines as well as from many classes that never expected to deal with either. It takes them; they disappear for a while and return, changed to their very souls, for "the trade" lives in a world without precedents, of which no generation has had any previous experience —a world that is still being made and enlarged daily. It creates and settles its problems as it goes along, and if it cannot help itself, no-one else can.

So "the trade" lives in the dark and thinks out inconceivable, impossible things which afterward it puts into practice.
It keeps books, too, as honest traders should. They are almost as bald as ledgers, written up hour by hour on a little sliding table that pulls out from beneath the commander's bunk. In due time they go to my Lords of the Admiralty, who presently circulate a few carefully watered extracts for the confidential information of the junior officers of "the trade," that these may see what things are done and how.

Juniors Have Heard It All

The juniors read, but laugh. They have heard the stories with all the flaming detail and much of the language, either from the chief actor while they were perched deferentially on the edge of the mess-room fender or from his subordinate, in which case they were not so deferential—or from some returned member of the crew, present on the occasion, who, between half shut teeth at the wheel, jerks out what really happened.

There is very little going on in "the trade" that "the trade" does not know within a reasonable time, but the outside world must wait until my Lords of the Admiralty release the records.

Some of them are released now.

Let us take, almost at random, an episode in the life of H. M. S. submarine E-9.

As Though Boat Spoke

It is true she is commanded by Commander Max Horton, but the utter impersonality of the tale makes it as though the boat herself spoke. Also having never met or seen any gentleman concerned in the matter, the writer can be impersonal, too.

Some time ago the E-9 was in the Baltic in the dead of winter, where she used to be taken to her hunting ground by an ice-breaker. Obviously the submarine cannot use her sensitive nose to smash the heavy ice with, so a broad-beamed pushing chaperon comes along to see her clear of the thick harbor and shore ice. In the open sea apparently she is left to her own devices.

Making Tests

In company of the ice-breaker, then, the E-9 "proceeded"—neither in the able to free the boat of ice, and so went below."

In the senior service the two words "as requisite" cover everything that need not be talked about. The E-9 the next day "proceeded as requisite" through a series of snow-storms and recurring deposits of ice on the bridge till she got in touch with her friend, the ice-breaker, and in her company she ploughed and rooted her way back to the work we know.

Did Not Arrive Too Soon

There is nothing to show it was a near thing for the E-9, but somehow one has the idea that the ice-breaker did not arrive any too soon for the E-9's comfort and progress.

That was in winter; in summer it was quite the other way. The E-9 had to go to bed by day, very often under the long lasting northern lights, when the Baltic was as smooth as a carpet and one could not get within a mile and a half of anything with eyes in its head without being put down.

There was one time when the E-9, evidently on information received, took up a "certain position" and reported that the sea was glassy and that she had to suffer in silence while three heavily laden German ships went by, for an attack would have given away her position.

Reward On Following Day

Her reward came the next day, when she sighted an "enemy squadron coming up fast from the eastward and proceeding in shore of us." They were two heavy battleships with an escort of destroyers, and the E-9 turned to attack.

She does not say how she crept up in that smooth sea within a quarter of a mile of the leading ship, "a three-funnel ship of either the Deutschland or Braunschweig class," but she managed it and fired both her bow torpedoes at her.

"No. 1 torpedo was seen and heard to strike her just before the foremost funnel. Smoke and debris appeared to go as high as the masthead."

With Intent To Kill

That much the E-9 saw before one of the guardian destroyers ran at her.

"So," says she, "observing her, I took my periscope off the battleship." This was excusable, as the destroyer was coming up with intent to kill, and the E-9 had to flood her tanks and get down quickly. Even so the destroyer only just missed her and she struck bottom in forty-three feet.

"But," says the E-9, who if she could not see had surely kept her ears open, "at the correct interval—45 or 50 seconds, as mentioned in the previous case—the second torpedo was heard to explode, though it was not actually seen."

Destroyer Waiting

The E-9 came up twenty minutes after to make sure.

The destroyer was waiting for her a couple of hundred yards away, and again the E-9 dipped for her life, but "just had time to see one large vessel approximately four or five miles away."

Putting courage aside, think for a moment of the mere drill of it all!
That last dive for an attack on a chosen battleship, the eye at the per-iscope watching No. 1 torpedo get home, the rush of the vengeful destroyer, the instant orders for flooding everything, the swift descent, which had to be arranged with full knowledge of the shallow sea floors waiting

The Manicure Lady

She Talks on Culture and Club Life

By William F. Kirk
"Sister Mayme has joined a Culture Club," said the Manicure Lady. "She is going to be cultured if it takes all her spare time."

Missus belongs to some of them clubs, and it don't seem to learn her nothing."

"I think this culture club is O. K.," said the Manicure Lady. "If I notice that Mayme is getting more cultured, maybe I'll join it too, though goodness knows, George, any culture I might grab onto would be kind of like a lost child around this barber shop. Pink shirts to look at and pink weeklies to read ain't much for making culture."

"I don't believe much in culture, anyhow," declared the Head Barber. "I ain't got none, and I am just as happy without it."

"Maybe your customers would be happier if you had a little," the Manicure Lady suggested. "They say cultured people get along better in the world. Brother Wilfred took some lessons in deportment once, and ever since then he has been able to get money from father by asking for it nice and polite."

"He wrote a poem on culture for Mayme to read at her club. It goes like this:

"The finest thing in all the world is just a bit of culture. When people ain't got any of such they act just like a culture, I always try to be polite. And considerate of people's feelings. And that is why they treat me all right."

"When with them I have dealings," said the Head Barber, "but that don't sound like poetry to me. It sounds kind of foolish."

"That's on account of your not having no intellect, George," said the Manicure Lady. "Poetry is wrote for folks with tops on their bodies, people with brains. If everybody had brains the poets would get rich. As it is, they write for folks that knows good things, and I hope you don't think Wilfred would be hurt none if he knew you didn't like his poetry."

"You used to think I was smart," said the Head Barber. "Anyhow, you always asked my advice about a lot of things."

"You're smart in world things, George," agreed the Manicure Lady. "Things like billiards and betting and baseball and beer, and everything that begins with B. But all of them finer things of life, like poetry and pianos and pictures and pie, etc., you don't care much about. Your folks couldn't have been very proud of you when you was young, George. You ain't got no refinement."

"Maybe you're right," said the subduel Head Barber, "but refinement ain't ever felt to home in a barber shop."

Some Useful Dreams

Let people scoff at dreams, but they have played a useful part in many lives. It is probable that no modern man reduced dreaming to so scientific and useful a point as Robert Louis Stevenson.

He was a wonderful dreamer, and could dream in sequence, continuing a dream from the point where he had broken off, like a serial story. It was in this way that the greater part of "Jekyll and Hyde" was put together. Well, if a man can dream a masterpiece of fiction, it is worth something.

The finest national hymn in the world is the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who wrote the hymn, heard the soldiers singing "John Brown's Body." The tune sank in her mind, and she thought she would like to write new words to fit it, but they couldn't come. She retired for the night, and dreamed the whole poem as it stands. Getting out of bed, and scarcely conscious of what she did, she wrote the verses, then got back into bed and slept till morning.

But perhaps the cake is taken in this sort of thing by the inventor of the sewing machine. Elias Howe was the man, and his difficulty was not the machine, but the needle. He might have failed altogether but for this dream. He thought he was in a strange and savage land and was to be executed if he did not complete the machine and make it sew.

He was given twenty-four hours, and he spent it in an agony of work, apparently. It was all useless, until he was actually being led to the place of death. On the way he noticed that the warriors who guarded him carried spears which were pierced near the head. Instantly the inventor saw the solution of his difficulty, and whilst he was begging for time he awoke. It was 4 o'clock in the morning. He leaped out of bed, rushed to his workshop, and before breakfast he had modeled the first sewing machine needle, with the eye at the point!

Stories of The Men Who Fight Under Sea

Through all these and half a hundred other simultaneously developing considerations, imagine the trained minds below counting, as only torpedo men can count, the run of the mercurial seconds that should tell when the second shot arrived.

Then "at the correct interval," as laid down in the table of distances, the boom and jar of No. 2 torpedo, the relief, the exhaled breath and untightened lips, the impatient waiting for a second peep and, when that is taken and the eye at the periscope has reported one little nigger boy in place of two on the waters, then perhaps cigarettes, etc., while the destroyer sickled about at a venture overhead.

What Rewards For Such Things? Certainly they give men rewards for doing such things! But what reward can there be in any gift of the King's or the people's to match the enduring satisfaction of having done them not alone, but with and through and by trusty and proven companions?

The E-1, also in the Baltic, but with Commander F. N. Laurance, had experiences, too. She went out one summer day and late-too late-in the evening sighted three transports. The first she hit. While arranging for the second the third inconsiderately tried to ram her before her sights were on. So it was necessary to go down at once and waste whole minutes of precious scouting light.

When she rose the stricken ship was sinking and shortly afterwards blew up.

The other two were patrolling nearby. It would have been a fair chance in daylight, but darkness defeated her and she had to give up the attack. Destroyers On Alert

It was the E-1 who, during thick weather, came across a squadron of battle-cruisers and got in on the flanking ship, probably the Moltke. The destroyers were very much on the alert and she had to dive at once to avoid one who only missed her by a few feet. Then the fog shut down and stopped further developments. Thus do time and chance come to every man.

"The trade" has many stories, too, of watching patrols when a boat must see chance after chance go by under her nose and write—merely write—what she has seen. Naturally, they do not appear in any accessible records. Nor, which is a pity, do the authorities release the records of the glorious failures when everything goes wrong, when torpedoes break the surface and square like ducks, or arrive full square with a clang and burst of white water and fall to explode, or when the devil is in charge of all the motors and the clutches, and develops play that would scare a shore-going mechanic.

bald, or when the batteries begin to give off death instead of power and stop, or of all the ice or wreckage of the strewn seas that racks and wrenches the hull till the whole leaking bag limps home with six missing cylinders and one ditto propeller, plus the indomitable will of the red-eyed, husky scarecrows in charge. There might be worse things in the world for decent people to read than such records.

Democracies for Europe

(New York American)

This war has already burdened the workers of Europe and their children to come with a debt of fifty thousand millions of dollars.

That is more than six times the value of all the gold coin in the world.

That imposes upon every working class family in Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria Hungary, Italy and Russia a debt more than four times the average family's entire savings.

This war has already killed or permanently crippled at least five million wage-earners.

Thus the working class families have both been saddled with crushing debt and robbed of their debt-payers. It will be a miracle if the working people of Europe do not rise in despair and wrath and sweep away governments and institutions whose operations could result in such stupendous slaughter and waste.

We believe that every nation in Europe will be a democracy within a very few years, and that these democracies will find some way to put an end to the thousand years of warfare that have made Europe's history one long story of devastation after devastation and slaughter heaped upon slaughter.

Little folks enjoy the Victrola

They enjoy the catchy music as well as the big folks—and they soon get to have "favorites" of their own.

There are besides special children's records of well-known songs and recitations which are the children's own.

Bring the children in to hear some of the special Victor Records for children. We'll gladly play them and tell you how easy it is to get a Victor or Victrola—$10 to $400.

To keep your baby perfectly well this summer

1. Keep it cool and out-of-doors as much as possible.
2. Give it plenty of boiled water.
3. Make its food light. You, yourself, don't eat as much heavy meat in summer as in winter. Lighten your baby's diet.

Also don't give him raw cow's milk with its heavy indigestible curd and germs of summer complaint—summer complaint that kills more babies than any other cause in the world.

Give it Borden's Malted Milk.

It is a complete food, so you need add only water and boil one minute.
